California Community Colleges Early Childhood Education Curriculum Alignment Project (CAP)

Spring 2018 HIGHLIGHTS

May 1, 2018

Aligning Curriculum to Benefit ECE

California Community College Early Care and Education faculty have initiated a statewide alignment project. The community college professional faculty organization, California Community College Early Childhood Educators (CCCECE), brought together over 300 faculty to participate in this endeavor. They identified the philosophical underpinnings of this effort and developed an agreed upon set of guiding principles. From this, a team comprised of 28 community college and 4 California State University faculty met monthly to design a set of 8 lower-division courses to serve as a consistent educational foundation for California's early care and education professionals.

The Lower-Division 8 (adopted in 2007-2008) is intended to fulfill one portion of an ECE lower-division program of study. With additional coursework, both at lower-division and upper-division levels, it prepares the student for in-depth coursework toward degree attainment.

An Evidence-Based Foundation

Key content areas were identified and researched and content teams worked to construct a program of study that would begin with 24 units of lower-division coursework. Course development was informed by NAEYC Associate Degree Program Standards, current best practice and crafted as competency-based coursework for California's future teachers to benefit all young children and their families.

CAP is administered by the Child Development Training Consortium. A project of the Quality Improvement Office, Early Education and Support Division.

California's Curriculum Alignment Project (CAP) and the Transfer Model Curriculum (TMC)

In 2010, the California Legislature passed SB 1440 (Padilla) that mandated CA community colleges develop transfer degrees with no more than 60 units required in the lower-division work, including general education units. For the Early Childhood Education discipline, the major units determined by a statewide committee of both community college and CA state university faculty proposed that the CAP Lower-Division 8 courses be the courses for this transfer degree.

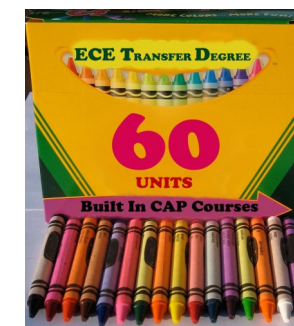

Humboldt State

College of the Redwoods

The Early Childhood Education Transfer Degree was vetted with faculty throughout California and officially approved in May 2011. Community colleges in California are now working to develop this Transfer Degree (called the AS-T in ECE).

Since the CAP courses total a minimum of 24 units, campuses must determine which course(s) to use as general education so the maximum total of 60 units is not exceeded. To view which California community colleges have been approved for this degree, go to www.sb1440.org and click on "Counseling Information", then 'Available Degree Pathways, approved degrees, by major'.

For further information about the ECE Transfer Degree and the course descriptors for the 8 CAP Courses, go to www.c-id.net. There, you can view the listing of the courses for this degree. CA community colleges that wish to apply for this Transfer Degree with the CA Community College Chancellor's Office should first apply for C-ID approval for each of the 8 courses. More information is available about this process at www.c-id.net.
